DETAILED ACTION

Priority

Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-5, 8-10 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Bushnell et al., U.S. patent No. 5,447,733.

Bushnell teaches a method for killing microorganisms in a flowing, aqueous food product, the microorganisms including protozoa (column 1, lines 25-30) with a pulsed electric field at an intensity of greater than 5kV/cm (column 5, lines 65-68) for short pulse durations of 2 micro seconds to about 40 ms (column 18, lines 20-38) using around 17 pulses (column 13, lines 25-30).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 1744

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yin et al., U.S. patent No. 5,690,978.

Yin et al., teach sterilization of an aqueous, flowing food product with a pulsed electric field having an intensity of around 15 kV/cm, at a frequency of around 500 Hz with a pulse length of 1 to 20 ms. Yin et al., fail to specify protozoa as the microorganisms being treated, however, it well held that protozoa are recognized as being treatable in such a format, as supported by the Bushnell et al., cited above.

With respect to the wave shape, all those cited are conventional wave shapes in electric pulse technology and it would have been well within the purview of one of ordinary skill in the art to perform the design choice to determine which wave shape to employ.

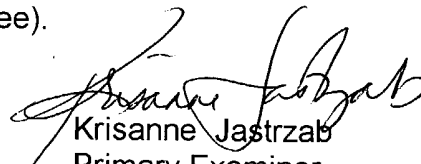

With respect to the limitation to the protozoa being amoebas, amoebas are recognized as common protozoa and thus would be an obvious microorganism present for treatment.
